

Best City To Live In UK

Edinburgh, for quite some time has topped Leading dailies and polls' lists for the best city to live in the UK. Some of the many things experts consider while making a list as such include: quality of life, cultural importance, career potential, schools and colleges, real estate, crime rate, among many other criterion.

Remembering these aforementioned requisites, will definitely give you a better idea, should you plan or need to move into a new town or city.

About the number one city, Edinburgh in the top position is a no-brainer. It has a fascinating mix of all things Gothic to many hip bars and restaurants, great real estate, schools, colleges and the works. If you wonder why London is left behind, it's simple: money. No money? Then never will London be the best city to live in the UK. Every resident and traveler to the city knows about its infamous and ever-burgeoning prices, be it in retail, restaurants or real estate. Among other things, in some pockets of the city, the crime rate continues to climb at a staggering rate. England's second most loved city, Birmingham is not too far behind in the list of best cities to live in England or UK. Not just a city with great atmosphere, the city is also on the verge of becoming home to some of the most interesting architecture, this side of the Atlantic. However, most softies and young-at-hearts still feel that the warmth and cultural mesh that is Bristol, makes it the most fantastic city to live in UK.

Cardiff, Manchester, Glasgow, Newcastle, Liverpool and Oxford are some of the other usual suspects that feature in similar top ten lists. You might think, many of these cities are not as mighty as London or be swathed in old-world like Edinburgh but they are equipped to satiate most of your requirements for when you are shifting your business or home to any of them.

An easy guide to moving house is not something that is easily available on bookshelves in your neighborhood store whether you are in Leicester or Northampton. Nevertheless, don't panic and cry 'help I am moving' to anyone who is willing to lesson. Irolis Removals, a leading name in helping families and businesses move across the UK, will make the whole otherwise painful experience, easy for you.
